

Undergraduate Research Assistantship for Spring Quarter 2019

Program on the Global Environment/Urban and Environmental Research Group
Prof. Emily Talen and Sabina Shaikh

We are seeking a Research Assistant (15 hours/week), undergraduate level, for Spring Quarter 2019. The position will start as soon as possible, and continue through June, 2019, with the possibility of continuation through the summer.

The student will assist with the Urban and Environmental Research Group. We are working on several ongoing research projects related to the study of urban sustainability. More information on the working group is available here:

<https://urbandesign.uchicago.edu/>

The salary is $15 per hour.

Duties will include providing research summaries, conducting literature reviews, data gathering, and contributing to report and article writing.

Desired Qualifications: Strong interest in the built environment, urban sustainability, environmental issues such as resilience and climate change, urban studies, urban planning, or urban design; good research and writing skills; familiarity with database management is a plus but not required.

Applications will be considered on a rolling basis. Applicants should email a cover letter, resume, and the names, emails, and phone numbers of three references to pge@uchicago.edu.
